Smiles all around as child-tying suspects appear in Circuit Court

Grandmother, parents return to court Nov. 7

The grandmother and parents accused of tying up a 3-year-old girl for up to 16 hours a day laughed and hugged as they exited a courthouse elevator Tuesday morning just minutes after appearing in Anderson Circuit Court.

The grandmother, Carolyn Case, also smiled as she exited the courthouse by one door, while the girl's parents, Rebecca and Herbert Medley, attempted to hide their faces while exiting from another door.

All three appeared in front of Circuit Judge Charles Hickman, who set their next court date for Nov. 7 during which an offer from the Commonwealth's Attorney's office could be heard.

Their appearance is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. While waiting to appear, the Medleys sat together, Herbert with his arm wrapped around Rebecca as they spoke to each other and occasionally smiled.

At one point, Herbert Medley and a prisoner in court on methamphetamine charges, Robert Medley, spoke briefly and smiled at each other.

Case sat a row behind the Medleys but all three appeared in front of the judge at the same time. None of them spoke during their appearance.

All three have already pleaded not guilty to first-degree criminal child abuse charges that were brought against them last month.

Cops: Suspect hid girlfriend's pot in Summer's Eve box

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

A Lawrenceburg man was on his way to surprise his girlfriend with a gift, but was sidetracked by police confiscating $7,200 worth of pot from his residence.

Charles Scharbrough, 45, of 1060 Mudlick Road was charged Oct. 15 with cultivating marijuana five plants or more and a failure to wear a seat belt.

Lawrenceburg Police Officer Jeremy Cornish said he performed a routine traffic stop last Thursday afternoon on Scharbrough's vehicle because of a possible DUI complaint and a failure to wear a seat belt, according to the citation.

As the officer was retrieving an open alcohol container that Scharbrough said he had under the front seat, Cornish said smelled something else coming from a plastic bag in the front seat — marijuana.

Cornish said he found a freshly cut "bud" of marijuana inside a feminine hygiene cleansing product box in Scharbrough's vehicle. Scharbrough said he was planning on giving the marijuana clipping as a gift for his girlfriend, according to Cornish.

Further investigation and Scharbrough's written consent to search led Cornish and two other city deputies to search his residence at 1080 Mudlick Road, where six fully budded marijuana plants were growing in pots inside.

Because of Scharbrough's cooperation with police, Cornish said, officers allowed Scharbrough to turn himself in at the city police station on Sunday morning.

Cornish estimated the street value of the six marijuana plants to be $1,200 per plant, or about $7,200 total.

Man charged with rape of mentally disabled sister

From staff reports

Auston G. Satterly, 18, of 34834 Mt. Eden Road, was scheduled to appear Oct. 16 in Anderson Circuit Court for a disposition hearing regarding the alleged incest and rape of his 21-year-old mentally disabled sister.

Satterly was arrested Jan. 25, 2012, for incidents dating back to November 2011 through December 2011, according to Kentucky State Police reports.

He has pleaded not guilty to one count incest, a Class B felony; one count rape in the first degree, a Class B felony; and one count rape in the third degree of a person incapable of consent.

According to a January 2012 interview conducted by state police with the victim, the female disclosed her brother had sex with her, but according to state police reports, was not a credible witness due to possessing the mental capacity of a 5 to 10 year old.

The report stated the victim "has trouble with a truth and a lie."

Health department offers drive-thru flu shots

From staff reports

This year's flu shot is only a car trip away.

The Anderson County Health Department will be offering a free drive-in flu shot clinic Oct. 22 from 4-7 p.m. at the health department facilities, located at 1080 Glensboro Road in Lawrenceburg.

The flu shot clinic is available to uninsured adults residing in Anderson County, according to Health Department Director Tim Wright.

"You don't have to get out of your car; it's just drive thru and drive out," Wright said.

Wright said those residents with health insurance such as Medicare, Medicaid or Humana are welcome to come to the health department during their

Clowns use magic to spread Christian message

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

An illusionist is like a detective. Clark Rowland of Lawrenceburg dissects illusions he wants to learn starting from its conclusion, tracing the process of the magic trick back to its beginning.

"I have an inventive mind," Rowland, who has been performing illusions as part of a magic ministry called Gospelusions for the past seven to eight years, said. "I should have been a detective or something. I like to dig into the whys."

His great-uncle Joel, who Rowland said he considers his "third grandfather," taught a 10-year-old Rowland his first pocket trick — the vanishing coin.

In high school, a teenage Rowland started getting serious about magic after helping the late Pineville magician Preston Slusher (also known as Preston the Magician) pack up his gear; Slusher gave Rowland a complimentary card trick that Rowland still has today.

"It's one of those things that start out as a hobby, and you go in and out of it, in and out of it," Rowland said of his interest in magic tricks and illusions.

Rowland, who has mastered routines such as sawing a lady in half and performed simple magic in clown garb, now uses his illusions as a medium for illustrating biblical gospel.

Take Rowland's go-to rope trick. Rowland displays three ropes of varying sizes. The first one represents a small lie, the next rope is a little longer, and symbolizes a slightly larger fib. The third and longest rope is the largest "lie" of them all.

"Because in the Lord's eye, they're all pretty much the same," Rowland says as he grasps all three ropes in one hand and then unfolds only one long piece of rope.

"There's a lot of (magic tricks) you can spin a little gospel in," he said. "You can capture their attention and maintain it."

Rowland says he's performed as a Christian illusionist at about six churches in Anderson County; he's taught magic and clowning classes for children with Paul Bransom, fellow magic enthusiast and professional clown, at their home congregation Hope Community Church. Rowland said

Photos by Meaghan Downs

Paul Bransom, professional clown and balloon animal wrangler, said he's naturally gifted with balloon animals, and that the most requested balloon shapes are flowers for girls and pirate hats with swords for boys. The hardest is the monkey in a palm tree balloon trick, which requires four balloons.

he also hopes to schedule an engagement with a children's home in Eastern Kentucky soon.

Although he's been out of commission because of a knee injury, Rowland said he's drafting a letter to area churches to let them know he's available for events.

Rowland spends about four or five hours a week researching magic and illusions on the Internet, reading through his collection of more than 50 magic/illusion books, or browsing the Surplus Magic Exchange, an online marketplace for magic tricks and supplies.

His favorite part of performing illusions is watching his audience's reaction, whether it is filled with children or adults.

Adults are easier to fool because they try too hard, Rowland said. Children just accept the magic as it is.

"Almost anything you can imagine, you can make it appear to happen," Rowland said.

A funny thing happened on the way to graduation Once Paul Bransom finished his bachelor's degree, he went back to school — for a degree in clowning.

Bransom, a Texas native who attended the University of Texas — Arlington for business, saw clowning classes available at his university, and was hooked.

He said he thought the classes would be fun, and wanted to bring a little joy into people's lives. Clowning itself is a kind of learning, Bransom said; you never stop learning and taking courses to become a better performer.

"At first they thought it was a joke, and then they became supportive," Bransom said of his friends' and family's reaction to his new hobby. "When they saw I was serious about it, then they became supportive."

After college, he was hired by an agency called Funny Business in Texas, performing at birthday parties and company picnics for four years in the early 1990s.

For the next several decades, Bransom performed as Klutz E. Klown, his "auguste" clown character, or the hobo clown Catfish at corporate events, company picnics and church gospel shows, averaging five to 20 shows a summer.

Clark Rowland, the man behind Lawrenceburg magic ministry Gospelusions, said he considers himself a 'Christian illusionist,' using magic tricks to illustrate Christian gospel teachings.

"A clown is kind of like a living cartoon, and that's what Klutz E. is," he said.

Bransom, who works as a sales representative with FedEx and has lived in Lawrenceburg for the past 15 years, said the most difficult thing about clowning isn't the hour and a half it takes to put on make up or get into costume. It's practice.

"You have to practice magic tricks many, many times in private before you ever perform them," Bransom said. "If you're learning a new balloon animal or a new balloon creature, you have to practice it a hundred times before you perform in front of people so you don't mess up."

Bransom said when he's in character as a clown, he almost adopts a different personality, molds his voice differently (he used to pitch his voice into a falsetto, but it hurt his throat too much and kids didn't really care, he said.)

"Klutz E. does things I would never dream of doing," Bransom said, adding Klutz E. is open, friendly, doesn't hesitate to approach all types of people.

"He would walk up to a biker in a biker bar and give him a hug."

Bransom said he understands why some people possess phobias about clowns; he's seen the movie adaptation of Steven King's "IT."

The problem is, he said, the two weeks before Bransom is scheduled to perform at a birthday party, parents have been warning their child not to be scared of the clown.

"It's like saying 'Don't think of the purple elephant,' and you can't think of anything but the purple elephant," Bransom said.

Bransom said he'd like to expand his clowning into more gospel shows and to use paying gigs to fund volunteer performances at nursing homes.

After he retires, he might do clowning full-time. Maybe learn stilt walking.

"But I'm a little bit afraid. I mean, my name's Klutz E.," Bransom said. "You put me on stilts I may break something."

"I just enjoy clowns. They're there to make your life a little better."

TIED UP

from jail on their own recognizance after being charged with first-degree criminal child abuse of a person under the age of 12.

Herbert Medley is facing the same charge and was released from jail after posting $1,000 on a $10,000 bond.

The charge against them stems from a state police investigation during which the women reportedly told troopers that the 3-year-old was tied to her bed from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. each day. They also acknowledged that the child was also tied to the bed for a two-hour nap, and spent an additional four hours tied up for discipline, according to the documents.

She was also tied up to a booster seat in a kitchen chair for up to an hour a day for discipline.

The child was tied up with a curtain sash by lacing it through the arm holes in her shirt and behind her back. It was then fastened to the bed using a large horse collar safety pin, according to court documents. The sash was also used to tie her to a kitchen chair.

Case, the grandmother, told investigating troopers with the Kentucky State Police that the girl "spent more time tied up than free," according to documents.

Case also told investigators that she was tied up because she was "getting out of bed and getting into things," and that she was trying to "get out of the residence when everyone was asleep."

Case added that the girl's mother, Rebecca Medley, "would tie [the girl] up very tightly and that [her] movement was very impaired and she was not able to escape."

The girl was being tied up from June 1 through Aug. 3, when a child protective services worker alerted the state police.

Herbert Medley told police he knew about the girl being tied up but "felt he could not tell anyone because Case had threatened to kick them out of the residence."

He said that Case started the practice and showed his wife how to do it.

Chamber-sponsored debate is Thursday

From staff reports

Some candidates for local and state offices are scheduled to appear during a debate scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Anderson County High School auditorium.

The debate will be conducted by the Anderson County Chamber of Commerce and will feature both candidates for the state House of Representatives and state Senate.

It will also include eight of the 12 candidates for Lawrenceburg City Council and both candidates vying for the Anderson County School Board.

Andy Barr, the Republican candidate for US Congress, is also scheduled to attend.

Incumbent Congressman Ben Chandler's office said by the time he received his invitation from the chamber of commerce he had already committed to appear at the Operation Turnout Candidate Forum in Lexington that evening.

Barr, however, "will be given an open time frame to share whatever [he feels] is most important ... for a set period of time," according to information released by the chamber.

Questions for the candidates will be compiled from suggestions provided to the chamber from residents and businesses and only the moderator and timekeeper will know those questions, according to information released by the chamber.

School board and city council candidates will not be asked questions. Each will have two minutes to speak.

State representative candidates are expected to appear for 30 minutes, as are candidates for state Senate and city council. School board candidates are scheduled for 10 minutes.

Gabe Uebel, vice chairman-elect of the chamber board, will moderate the event. Chairman-elect John Rennels will serve as timekeeper and board secretary Heather Alexander will be the official secretary of the event.

The event is scheduled to last until 8:40 p.m., according to information provided by the chamber of commerce.

Bad advice on how to cast your vote

Professed atheist's request for faith page inclusion denied

Column as I see 'em ...
If Anderson County wants to get its fair share of state funds, it needs to elect the candidate whose party controls the House.

That's not my logic or recommendation; vote for whichever candidate you want. But it is something I've been told by a number of politically connected folks around here while discussing the race between incumbent Republican Kim King and challenger Kent Stevens, a Democrat.

Loosely referred to as The Game, that line of logic stems from the belief that only by electing those whose party controls the House, Senate or governor's mansion can Anderson County get not only what it needs, but it's "fair share," too, whatever that means. It's The Game, and the only way to succeed, they say, is to play it.

On the surface that logic makes some sense. Once removed from the local level, most politicians get so brow beaten about towing the party line that casting a single vote that rubs their party's fur the wrong way is enough to leave that politician, and his or her constituents, out in the cold.

Those who do play The Game are sometimes rewarded with all sorts of swag, including pork-filled projects that are designed to nothing more than keep them elected.

But if that logic works for the state rep seat, shouldn't it also work elsewhere?

For instance, if the idea is to elect candidates whose party is in power, wouldn't Anderson County be better off with a Republican state senator who can pull party favors from Senate President David Williams?

And if that's true, wouldn't we also be better off with a Republican in Congress who could get cozy with House Majority Leader John Boehner?

Of course those who lobby that logic locally would cringe at the above alternative scenarios because when you get to where the cheese binds, party comes long before simply choosing the best person for the job.

Speaking of better off, I seriously doubt the lives of poor and minority children in Kentucky have improved after reading a report in the Herald-Leader about the massive increase in the number of poor and disabled Kentucky children placed on antipsychotic drugs.

The paper reported that the number poor and disabled children on Medicaid who are receiving these drugs jumped 270 percent from 2000 to 2010, according to a report released by UK.

The cost to taxpayers during that time? A whopping $6.6 billion.

Leading that growth were minority children, who take those drugs at three times the rate of white children.

There are almost certainly cases where drugs of these types can help children, but no one is going to convince me that such a remarkable increase isn't tied directly to the incessant advertisements the drug companies run on TV along with misguided and under-educated parents (and no shortage of teachers) who'd prefer to dope rambunctious children rather than deal with them as they are.

When you think about it, it's not all that different than tying them to a bed for up to 16 hours a day, is it.

Speaking of dealing with them, there's no doubt the letter to the editor from Jerry Milburn will make some in the faith community squirm.

It's his second kick at the cat, so to speak, after a guest column of his appeared a couple of months ago in which he argued on behalf of atheism.

From a professional perspective I don't care what the fellow does or doesn't believe, any more than I care what any of you do or don't believe. Like voting, that's up to you, and I'm certainly not qualified to proselytize.

What I am qualified to do is decide what goes in this newspaper and, if it does, where it will appear.

As I've explained to Mr. Milburn, he is always welcome to submit letters and guest columns for my consideration. If they are unique and meet the usual standards for publication, I'll print them. If not, I won't.

As for his organization, if it submits news or calendar items that meet usual publication standards, I'll print them, too.

What I won't do is place either on our weekly faith page. Like the society, opinion and other specialty pages, it has a unique purpose and target audience. Placing information about atheism on the faith page would be akin to placing high school football coverage on the society page — it simply doesn't go there.

Further, just because someone doesn't like the content of a particular page doesn't mean they have a right to have opposing or contradictory information printed on that page. As I often tell folks who cringe over dead deer photos in the sports section, if you don't like them, don't look at them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Main Street disappointing for tourists

To the editor:

A couple of weeks ago my husband and I had the pleasure of taking a 10-day vacation to Kentucky and Tennessee. We had a great time, by the way, and truly enjoyed seeing your part of the USA.

As many tourists do, one of our stops was a tour of Wild Turkey. Since we had some time to spend before our tour, we drove to Lawrenceburg for lunch [on Main Street]. We were very impressed with the food, the decor and the owners. I even recommended it to some other tourists.

What saddened me was to see so much of the town with vacant storefronts, as we had hoped to spend more time doing some shopping.

As a tourist with both time and money to spend, it would have been a very convenient place to do that. As it was, after lunch we left, which is something for your city's leaders to think about.

Carol deLongpre
Rochester, Minn.

Did you know there are atheists right here in Lawrenceburg?

To the editor:

I have lived here for nine years and I wasn't aware of any other non-believers but myself, until about a year ago, now I'm aware of about 10 of us and that number will soon grow because us godless heathens are having a pizza social this month, right here in this small Kentucky town.

There is a movement happening that is showing non-believers that it's ok to come out of hiding; society no longer believes in that part of the Bible that tells Christians to stone us to death. (Deuteronomy 13:6-10)

Kentucky recently held the first ever "Freethought Convention" and about 250 of us all came together as a group to show that we are no longer afraid to be proud of who we are.

You have lived with atheists for at least the last nine years and Yahweh has not burnt down this city; which must show that he doesn't have a big issue with us living here, so why should any of his followers?

I'm writing this because I think it's time to acknowledge that we are here and we aren't the only ones; I'm also writing this because the local newspaper, The Anderson News, has a "Faith" section yet I never see anything really against faith; there are weekly articles about faith...well about Christianity specifically.

At the bottom of this "Faith" page, there is a Church Services Directory; which is done as a service to the community (free of charge) to let them know where they can meet and discuss their religious beliefs and praise the god that they have chose to worship, yet again, I only really see Christianity represented.

How can you have a "Faith" section that only focuses on one faith?

I understand that The Anderson News is a "business" and can publish anything they want; however, I am respectfully requesting that The Anderson News offer the same type of services to all of their readers and all of the people who are a part of this community; including atheists. I would like to have our atheist group posted in the Church Services Directory as a service to the athiest community.

Lawrenceburg does have a group for atheists and it's called Freethinking Atheists of Central Kentucky and we are here to prove that you are not alone. Many of us have donated and done extensive charity work right here in our community to help our neighbors of all faiths and beliefs.

The Anderson News also has a "faith" writer that likes to discuss all of the Christian issues in this community and I, respectfully, request to be allowed to write something weekly for those of us that believe a little different.

We may be the minority here in Lawrenceburg but we are still a part of the community.

Messy parking lot 'embarrassment' to Lawrenceburg

To the editor:

The parking area across from the West Park McDonald's (on the other side of Lee's) is an embarrassment to Lawrenceburg.

The littering that goes on there is terrible. It does get cleaned up and then the next day, after students park there in the morning or after school, it is a mess again.

I have never seen an area in our town look so bad.

I am not sure who to direct my concern to so I am starting with the mayor and will contact a few others.

I hope someone is able to get a handle on this situation. I think the sad fact here is that the youth of Lawrenceburg have no pride for their town and are getting away with this disregard for the town they live in.

Unimpressed by Biden's performance in vice presidential debate

To the editor:

Well, I was one of those who stayed up to watch the 2012 vice presidential debate held in Danville, Ky, on Thursday between Congressman Paul Ryan and current vice president, Joe Biden. I have some observations that I would like to share.

First and foremost I thought that the moderator Martha Raddatz of ABC did a horrific job of control- controlling Joe Biden

Give love to Mother Earth this fall

You know it's fall when your laundry pile doubles in a week!

So far, the mercury has dropped to a low of 24 here at the farm. This being Kentucky, the next morning it was 42. I think Mother Nature gets dyslexic in the fall. The temperatures are going to waffle back and forth between mild to Brrrrr, until it's all Brrrr. That means wearing layers of clothing to keep from shivering. Hence, the doubling of the pile. Thankfully, I just made eight gallons of laundry soap!

The trees are putting on a colorful show, just before they drop. Colors range from deep red to bright yellow and everything in between. If you want to plant an autumn view of trees in your yard, you need to pick the right trees. A red maple will give you red leaves. Sugar maples offer orange and yellow, ash gives you a burgundy, hickory provides a light gold and elm a lemon yellow.

As the leaves drop, you have two choices, bag them or mow over them. Why you would want to bag them is beyond me though. They make great fertilizer and help with our heavy clay soils. Raking them into a 10 feet by 10 feet area and then mowing over them gives you a small area to rake up and remove to the garden. Till it in and you will have amended the clay soil.

Clay soil holds more nutrients than any other soil. The trick is to "unclump" the soil by adding compost. This allows the water to get through, instead of pooling. Yes, it requires a little labor, but it's not like you have to lift a Buick. Pull all the green living in the garden, then lay down the shredded leaves. Add a bucket of wood ashes to the mix and then till it into the soil. Now, cover the whole thing with black plastic and secure it to the ground.

You'll be ready to plant on any day of your choice next spring and you didn't pay a dime to fertilize.

Mum fans can still get those little beauties into the ground, but hurry. If you have mums already in the ground and the frost hit them go ahead and prune to an inch or two above ground. Then, mulch them. If you're planting new mums space them about 2 1/2 feet apart in good, well-draining soil. Go ahead and lay down some mulch and water them regularly.

The nuts are dropping all over the farm and I love it! If you dread picking up those nuts, do what I do, think "cookies"! Have you seen the price of nuts in the store? I've also got bags of zucchini in the freezer just waiting to be mixed up with flour, sugar, pineapple and nuts for bread. The recipe for Toll House chocolate chip cookies is already out and waiting for me to mix up a big batch with nuts. Nuts are good for you!

Eating just 6-7 walnuts a day can keep you from getting sick since they help fight free radicals. They also offer omega-3 fatty acids which helps lower the bad cholesterol and fight heart disease. But wait! There's more! They also provide a great source of vitamins E and B-6. The minerals they offer includes manganese, copper, potassium, calcium, iron, magnesium, zinc and selenium. The zinc is especially helpful to those who battle acid reflux. All of these vitamins and nutrients from just a little nut. So, bend over, and over and over for something that will help you stay healthy this winter, again without spending a dime.

We were meant to live on this earth in harmony, just like the four elements that make it up. We should have what is know as a symbiotic relationship, each benefiting the other. As I sat before the wood stove the other night, this thought was brought home.

I sat with a perfect cup of hot chocolate and watched the flames dance. As I stared, I got to thinking that fire is the perfect symmetry. All the elements, earth, water, air and fire, are represented. The wind came from the heat, the water from the moisture in the wood, and the earth provided the soil nutrients to feed and grow the tree. The end product is heat for my shelter. How great is that!

Now, get outside and give a little lovin' to Mother Earth. We couldn't live without her gifts. Get those chores done before it's B.A.C. (figure it out, the last word is cold!)

Use our ever increasing hours of darkness to fire up the washing machine. It's going to get a great workout this winter!

Happy Growing!

Use app, common sense to determine food safety

“4 Day Throw Away” is a great media program and app for protecting yourself from bad leftovers. This reliable program is sponsored by Iowa State University Extension and the University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

I learned about it at a recent professional conference, The National Association of Extension Family and Consumer Science Agents.

Three myths about food safety and leftovers need to be discarded. Food that looks, smells, and tastes OK is safe to eat. This is false. Bacteria may still be present.

Freezing leftovers will kill bacteria. False. Freezing doesn't kill bacteria. If it wasn't safe when you put it in the freezer, then it won't be safe when you take it out. Some bacteria will be killed by heat if the food is heated to an internal temperature of 165 degrees F.

Food should cool to room temperature before placing in the refrigerator. False. This just allows bacteria to grow during its favorite temperature of 40 degrees to 140 degrees.

This recommendation is a throwback to the days when there was no electricity, only an icebox full of real ice. The hot food would melt the ice.

Foods containing meat or poultry must be reheated to an internal temperature of at least 165 degrees. Always use a food thermometer to verify the internal temperature of the food. Reheating in slow cookers is not recommended because the food temperature may remain in the danger zone of 40 - 140 degrees, too long.

Reheat sauces, soups and gravies to a boil. If reheating in the oven, set the oven temperature no lower than 325 degrees. When reheating food in the microwave oven, cover, rotate and stir food for even heating. Always allow standing time before checking the internal temperature of the food. Typical standing time is three minutes for one or two servings, five minutes for four servings and up to 10 minutes for larger amounts of food.

After four days, throw it away, is just a general rule. Some foods won't keep that long. If you have an Apple media device such as an IPOD, iPhone, or iPad or use iTunes on your computer, then you can purchase an app for 99 cents. Check it out on www.fourdaythrowaway.org.

You can also check the website for information on how long to keep specific items. Foods are listed by groups and then extensive lists are found in each section.

You can also contact the Anderson County Extension Office for more information. USDA offers food safety information on the Meat and Poultry Hotline at 888-674-6854.

The Anderson County Extension Office has a limited number of refrigerator thermometers (16) and food thermometers (20) to give to readers of this article. Supplies will be distributed on a first come basis.

Remember, when in doubt, throw it out. Discard all perishable foods, such as meat, poultry, eggs and casseroles, left at room temperature longer than two hours; one hour in air temperatures about 90 degrees. This includes leftovers taken home from a restaurant. Some exceptions include cookies, crackers, bread and whole fruits.

who snickered, laughed, grinned, interrupted Mr. Ryan at each opportunity. As a moderator you are entrusted as the time keeper as well as authoring questions that allow for an answer, a rebuttal and a controlled discussion, if need be. She was all over the board, Joe Biden knew that she had lost control, thus he took the reins to pontificate his views over Congressman Ryan.

Secondly, as the national / world audience looked on, it was your vice president displaying these rude mannerisms in a debate so essential to all of us who are trying to decide on who we would elect to run our country if the president was unable to carry on his or her duties.

Third, vice president Joe Biden chose to laugh at Congressman Ryan when discussing the deaths of four American patriots in Libya. I wasn't laughing when Mr. Biden attempted to explain to the American public our president's lack of leadership and lies in this matter. Quite frankly, time would be better spent ousting the likes of Susan Rice (United States Ambassador to the United Nations) and progressing onward to impeachment proceedings of our current president, Barack Obama.

Finally, what I did learn from the debate was; if ever I thought of any good could come from Joe Biden, I was certainly mistaken. He doesn't qualify for my foxhole theory. For those of you who don't understand the foxhole theory - it's who you choose or wish to be beside when and if danger ever lurked at your side. And it confirms my beliefs that I don't want Obama or Biden re-elected to lie, laugh or whisk across the country side on daytime shows, spending our tax dollars espousing their socialist views.

I doubt most public officials want to keep their electorate in the dark.

But the dark is comfortable, and comforting. It's as easy as refusing to go on record, asking to remain anonymous for no legitimate reason other than fear of having a name attached to an action.

No one dragged you kicking and screaming to run for office.

If someone did, perhaps you need to re-evaluate other life choices.

This year, The Anderson News is publishing an election special section on Oct. 31. Inside, candidates for city council and the board of education answer several questions, such as:

- What budget items they believe require more/less funding
- Whether the city of Lawrenceburg is business friendly, and why
- Whether the board of education should set aside funding to buy textbooks as opposed to instituting the instructional fee at the high school.

These are important questions. Questions that deserve thoughtful and specific answers for our readers.

In light of the upcoming elections in November, I'm here to remind both incumbents and those hoping to be elected to their respective offices that they've made the voluntary choice to serve.

KENNETH H. ROLLINS, 89

Kenneth H. Rollins, 89, of Greencastle, passed away on Tuesday, October 9, 2012.

He was born on Sept. 14, 1923 in Charleston, Mo., to William Egbert Rollins and Olga Corinne Malone Rollins.

Kenny was a 1941 graduate of Wickliffe,

Kentucky High School. He attended the University of Kentucky from 1941 until 1943 where he started on the '42 varsity basketball team and played on the baseball team. He left UK in 1943 to serve in the U.S. Navy. While in the Navy, Kenny played basketball under coach Tony Hinkle and was stationed at the Great Lakes, Memphis, San Diego and Hollister.

In 1946 he returned to UK and was named the UK MVP his junior year. During his junior and senior years, he served as captain of the team. Kenny was part of the Fabulous 5 who won UK's first NCAA championship in 1948.

Kenny was part of the 1948 Olympic Team, which won the gold in London; this also was his proudest moment in life.

Returning to the United States, he was drafted as a point guard by the BAA Ft. Wayne Pistons, traded to the Chicago Stags and was named 1948-49 Rookie of the Year.

After two seasons in Chicago he went on to coach and play with the Louisville Aluminites, until being picked up by the NBA Boston Celtics, where he played for 1 1/2 years. He was also pursued by the St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds baseball farm teams. In 1995 Ken was inducted into the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame and in 2006 he was inducted into the Kentucky High School Hall of Fame.

During his career in the packaging industry, Kenny lived in Louisville, Grand Rapids, Mich., Lexington, Evansville, and Lawrenceburg, where he retired in 1986 from the Smurfit Corporation.

He and his wife, Mabel, retired to Bradenton, Fla., in 1994.

Mabel preceded Kenny in death in 1996. Kenny relocated to Greencastle in 2004 to live with his son.

He was a member of Immanuel Baptist Church in Lexington where he served as a deacon, Sand Springs Baptist Church in Lawrenceburg, the Kentucky Alumni Association, and served as past vice president of the K-men's Association.

Survivors are his children, Kevin Rollins and wife Vickie of Greencastle and Corinne Nelson and husband Jim of North Fort Myers, Fla.; a brother, Phil Rollins of Louisville; three grandchildren, Bruce Lee Keenon and wife Beth, Jennifer Rollins and Benjamin Rollins and wife Calli; one great-grandson, Matthew Keenon; numerous nieces, nephews and an abundance of UK fans.

Kenny loved to sing, especially hymns and special music at church. He delighted in the honor of singing "My Old Kentucky Home" at Rupp Arena during Senior Day in 1996. A Celebration of Kenny's Life will be held on Friday, Oct. 19 from 4-8 p.m. at the K-House located at 1398 Sports Center Drive in Lexington. Internment will be held on Saturday, Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. at the Lexington Cemetery Columbarium.

Memorials in Kenny's name may be directed to the University of Kentucky General Scholarship Fund or the University of One's Choice.

Condolences and expressions of sympathy may be shared with the family at www.BittlesandHurt.com.

Lawrenceburg couple volunteers in Danville during VP debate

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Drew Shannon, 12, wanted to see his social studies class in action.

He'd already watched the presidential debate (said Republican candidate Mitt Romney did an "outstanding job.")

Last Thursday's vice presidential debate seemed like the perfect place to spend the day with his grandparents Rick and Linda Shannon, volunteers with Centre College in pre-debate preparations, and watch the politics he'd learned about in school unfold in real life.

"Well, we've been talking about political things in social studies, and I just kept up with it and I wanted to see what it was like," Drew, who lives in Somerset, said.

The Shannons, residents of Lawrenceburg but who call Danville their "hometown," spent several days at Centre College volunteering in preparation for more than 3,000 media outlets to descend on the small campus for the debate.

Linda and Rick said they sent an e-mail to Centre College about three months ago to volunteer their services as soon as they heard the campus was chosen for the "Thrill in the Ville" vice presidential debate.

After attending a mass volunteer training and receiving a tour of the debate and media halls, the Shannons were stationed in the credentialing center, handing out pre-debate credentials as early as Oct. 5 to everyone planning on being on campus before and during the debate. Linda said she spent about 15 hours total volunteering over several days for the one-day event; Rick said he spent about eight hours total.

"Everyone on campus had to have pre-debate credentials, even students had to have that," Linda said.

She said the college expected about 3,000 media outlets representing 20 different countries to be covering the event. Linda recalled seeing reporters and broadcasters from networks like Al Jazeera, MSNBC, FOX News and had a lengthy conversation with a reporter from a Japanese press outlet.

Although Rick and Linda did not have tickets to the debate itself and were excused from volunteering that day, the couple possessed ID badges to participate with their grandson in pre-debate activities "in the perimeter" outside of the debate hall.

Security was pretty tight, Rick said, with many of the streets marked or blocked off to traffic.

Pre-debate activities included concessions, concerts and information booths; Centre College had a family-friendly and festival-like atmosphere, Linda said.

Drew said he wished there were more souvenir stands at the debate, although he did manage to purchase a bag with the "Thrill in the Ville" logo on it.

The Northern Middle

School seventh grader was most surprised, while observing the vice presidential debate activities, at how news broadcasts are set up and how much lighting they require.

"I thought it was really interesting seeing what an actual news broadcast was like," Drew said.

Though this is Linda's first experience with a vice presidential debate (Centre College was the host of a veep debate back in 2000), she said she'd definitely volunteer again.

"As far as what impressed me was how organized everything was, there was no sense of panic among the Centre people," Linda said. "It was very professional, very relaxed."

"That's probably not what was going on inside, but that was what was conveyed."

It was too cold to watch the debate on the big screens outside in Danville, so the Shannons and Drew went home to catch the rest of the Ryan/Biden match up.

When asked how he thought the vice presidential debate went, Drew said he thought both candidates did very well.

Frankfort Regional Medical Center teams up with Kosair Children's Hospital

From staff reports

Frankfort Regional Medical Center recently announced a partnership with Kosair Children's Hospital and the University of Louisville for specialty pediatric care.

By partnering with one of the country's top-ranked children's hospitals, Frankfort Regional will receive additional support for pediatric care, according to a news release.

Subspecialists from Kosair Children's Hospital and the University of Louisville Department of Pediatrics have begun seeing patients in Frankfort on a rotating basis.

"We are excited about this partnership and look forward to continuing Frankfort Regional Medical Center's commitment to excellence in pediatric care," said Chip Peal, chief executive officer at Frankfort Regional Medical Center.

"Having subspecialists from Kosair Children's Hospital here at Frankfort Regional means parents in our communities won't have to travel far to experience the most advanced care and consultations."

The physicians from Kosair Children's Hospital and the University of Louisville represent a number of pediatric subspecialties, including endocrinology, gastroenterology, nephrology, orthopedics, urology and surgery.

"The goal of our partnership is to extend access to Kosair Children's Hospital's resources and pediatric specialty care throughout the region," says Thomas D. Kmetz, president of Kosair Children's Hospital.

"By providing subspecialty services in Frankfort, it's easier for local patients to have access to our special type of care that's just for kids."

"It is always our goal to provide the best care possible for our smallest patients," says Bradley Chase, MD, board certified pediatrician on staff at Frankfort Regional.

Kosair Children's Outpatient Center - Frankfort is located at 279 King's Daughters Drive, Suite 200 in the Frankfort Medical Pavilion next to the hospital. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call 502-227-0901.

Health Department director issues dog rabies warning

From staff reports

News of a second rabid dog being found in Kentucky has local health officials warning pet owners to have their animals vaccinated.

Tim Wright, interim director of the Anderson County Health Department, said both dogs were involved in confrontations with skunks.

Wright

"All animal owners are encouraged to immunize their dogs, cats and ferrets for rabies by the age of 4 months," Wright said in a news release.

The dogs were located in Green County.

Other rabies cases reported this year in Kentucky include nine bats, two skunks and a fox, according to data provided by Wright.

The fox, he said, was located in Woodford County.

Free medical clinic begins accepting patients Oct. 17

From staff reports

The Anderson County Community Medical Clinic, Inc., a non-profit free medical clinic located at 1111 Industry Road in Lawrenceburg, is scheduling appointments starting Oct. 17 in preparation for its official opening Nov. 13.

Patients will be screened and referred to the clinic through the Anderson County Health Department, located at 1180 Glensboro Road. Qualifications for receiving clinic services will be:

- Having a diagnosed chronic illness
- No insurance

• Being over the age of 18
Anyone who qualifies and wants an appointment must call the Anderson County Health Department at 839-4551. There will be no walk-ins accepted at the clinic.

According to a press release from clinic volunteers, the vision for the facility was to "provide free medical care to adults who suffer from chronic illnesses such as diabetes, hypertension, obesity and hyperlipidemia (high cholesterol levels.)"

The clinic will be open every Tuesday evening from 6-9, or until last patient is seen and clinic is cleaned and locked.

Volunteers will go through training for HIPAA, blood borne pathogens, OSHA TB, and other training as directed by board. The first training was held Oct. 6. Future training will be scheduled before Nov. 13.

Volunteer applications may be requested by e-mail at carolnagel@bellsouth.net.

"Our hope is that the clinic will make an improvement in the quality of life of those we serve," the clinic's press release said. "The clinic board wishes to thank the community for its support and look forward to the success of the Anderson County Community Medical Clinic Inc."

The project originated in 2009 within the Health & Nutrition Committee of the organization known as Anderson County Community of Promise. Community of Promise, which was organized in 2002, is made up entirely of volunteers who share the goal of identifying and addressing human needs within the community.

Medical professionals throughout the community have stepped forward during the planning process to volunteer their services to staff the clinic when the doors are open.

These professionals include physicians, RNs, nurse practitioners and clinic support staff.

Dr. Kenneth Hines is the medical director and Mary Schram is in charge of nursing care.

The clinic's board of directors are Opal Phillips, chairman; Darleen Urban, vice chairman; Wendy Shouse, treasurer; Jane Bennett, secretary; and Carol Steward, community representative.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Non-profit hopes to touch lives of senior citizens

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Lexington resident Greg Dearing began a non-profit after reading a statistic — the leading cause of death after the age of 62 is from falls.

Dearing, born and raised in Anderson County, had been working on a research paper for his social work course at Bluegrass Community and Technical College.

The statistic shocked him, he said, because he knew those deaths were most likely preventable.

"I would have thought it was heart disease, old age, pneumonia," Dearing, who has one more semester before completing his associate's degree in arts and sciences, said. "The hospitalizations didn't shock me as much as the death rate."

T.O.U.C.H., or Treasuring Our Underprivileged Citizens with Heart, formed in mid-August, and its goal is to provide simple solutions like winterizing homes, installing safety railings and ramps, and checking for faulty wiring for Kentucky senior citizens unable to do so themselves.

Dearing, who retired four years ago from his job as an overall handyman, said he was spending his own time and money post-retirement helping senior citizens with simple home repairs.

Now he and several board

About T.O.U.C.H.

T.O.U.C.H. offers several other programs in addition to updating senior citizens' homes for safety:

Elderly Companions: Organizers send out two volunteers at least once a week to visit elderly that doesn't get many visitors, Dearing said. Participants fix meals, read books, and other tasks.

Uniting Generations: T.O.U.C.H. provides a support group for grandparents raising grandkids, but participants can be any family member, Dearing said. The first monthly meeting will be held Oct. 26 at 5:30 p.m. at Ninevah Christian Church in Lawrenceburg.

Insulating Homes and Warming Hearts: This is a winterizing program for low-income elderly and disadvantaged citizens offered by T.O.U.C.H., Dearing said.

Services include installing weather stripping, caulking windows, installing insulation, and other fix-ups to prepare for winter.

If interested in receiving services from T.O.U.C.H., they will be accepting applications through e-mail at TreasuredHearts04@gmail.com or call Dearing at 859-317-9394, Tonia Addison at 502-542-8298 or visit the group's soon-to-be launched website at www.touchky.com.

members in the Lexington and Lawrenceburg areas serve more than 20 Kentucky counties through the T.O.U.C.H. non-profit organization, based in Anderson County.

T.O.U.C.H. has assisted elderly citizens like a Lexington woman Dearing met a few weeks ago, whose third step was missing on her front stoop. According to Dearing, she had to haul herself over the gap in the stairs every time she stepped outside.

Bud Andrews, left, cuts a plank for a safety railing while T.O.U.C.H. co-founder and executive director Greg Dearing, right, assists him. The non-profit organization serves elderly citizens of more than 20 counties in Kentucky.

"You can tell on her arms, you could see some bruising and tiny abrasions," Dearing said, adding he repaired the woman's step in about a half hour.

In addition to safety repairs, Dearing said T.O.U.C.H. will offer to tour senior citizens' home on the look out for hazards that could prove problematic.

"If anybody has a concern for a senior citizen's home being unsafe, we'll walk through and check it out to reduce the safety hazards," Dearing said.

The group is currently working on an application for 501 (c)(3) non-profit status and a volunteer grant writer will begin the grant writing and application process, Dearing said. T.O.U.C.H. plans on hosting its first fundraiser on Oct. 20 at Southland Bowling.

What makes T.O.U.C.H. different from other programs that assist elderly citizens?

"It's more personal," T.O.U.C.H. board member Lynn Rucker said of the organization while a safety railing was installed at an elderly couple's home last Thursday. "It's people in the community coming together to help others."

Tonia Addison, assistant executive director of the group, agreed.

"I think there's a lot of disadvantaged people, whether elderly or not that can benefit from this rather than govern-

T.O.U.C.H. will host a Family Fun Day fundraiser on Oct. 21 from 2-4 p.m. at Southland Bowling, located at 205 Southland Drive in Lexington.

The cost is $12, which covers two hours of bowling and shoe rental. There will also be door prizes.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Student selected for Harding chorus

Erin Paden of Lawrenceburg has been selected for the 2012-13 Harding University Chorus, the school announced.

Following auditions at the beginning of the fall semester, students were chosen for the 60-member ensemble that performs on and off campus, according to the university's press release.

Paden, a sophomore vocal music education major, performs choral classics, new works, spirituals, opera, folk songs, novelties and contemporary Christian songs.

Chorus also travels throughout the United States and the world to perform for a variety of audiences.

Taking an extended tour in January and shorter trips during the school year, the group holds numerous concerts on campus and in the Searcy area.

Ward ranks sixth in state for arts and humanities

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Emma B. Ward Elementary ranks in the top 10 in Kentucky for its arts and humanities programs, according to data released by the Kentucky Department of Education this fall.

The elementary school achieved an overall score of 2.56 out of 5.0 for its program review of arts and humanities, ranking sixth in Kentucky for its overall performance.

Robert B. Turner received a score of 2.05; Saffell Street received a score of 1.89; and Ezra B. Sparrow Early Childhood Center received a score of 1.39.

According to the Kentucky Department of Education, the state's average score was 1.68. The minimum reported average was a 1.00 and the highest average was an elementary school in Fayette County with a score of 2.99.

"The reason I think we did so well is that we value our arts and humanities team," Ward Principal Amanda Ellis said, adding that the program review was a school-wide initiative.

Last Friday, fourth and fifth graders ran from station to station in Emma B. Ward's gym, completing tasks like copying rhythms on drums or playing a tune on an electronic keyboard.

The activity stations were implemented last year, Ward music instructor Kyle Lee said, involving cross-curriculum content included in the program review.

"Our teachers throughout the building, they contribute to that," Lee said of Ward's overall score. "It's a whole school thing."

Activity stations, which students engage in for about 45 minutes once a week, can be switched out according to the grade level and what students are learning in their arts, writing, music and P.E. classes, Lee said.

"We don't expect a first grader to do what a fifth grader is doing," he said.

Stacey Briscoe, a P.E. teacher at Ward, said the activity centers are a reinforcement of skill-base lifelong games, and are a treat for students outside of their regular classes.

"They're learning and reviewing, but they think of it as more of a free time," Briscoe said. "Like a game day."

According to Instructional Supervisor Sharon Jackman, the three elementary schools and the early childhood center in the district completed three program reviews last year for practical living/career studies, arts and humanities, and writing to identify areas of strength and growth.

Teachers collected surveys and student work samples to help rate the school's performance for four state standards: curriculum and instruction; formative and summative assessment; professional development and support services; and administrative/leadership support and monitoring.

The schools' ratings were then approved by a district-wide committee, Jackson said via e-mail, and sent to the Kentucky Department of Education for review.

After this trial year, program reviews will count in 2012-2013 toward the district and individual school accountability scores through the state's new assessment program K-PREP, Jackman said.

Saffell Street hosts writing celebration

From staff reports

Second graders at Saffell Street Elementary hosted their first writing celebration on Oct. 11.

According to teacher Stephanie Barnes, students are taking part in a daily writer's workshop that views writing as ongoing process where students plan, write, revise, edit and publish their writing.

Each student chose the piece they wanted to use and they will have several writing celebrations throughout the school year.

Classrooms participating included Mrs. Drury's, Mrs. Barnes', Mrs. Harley's and Mrs. Wilder's classes at Saffell Street.

Christian Bierly of Mrs. Wilder's second grade class, center, shows classmates his piece during the second grade writing celebration last week. Bierly said he wrote about being 'with his papa on a farm' for the writing celebration. For more photos of students at the writing celebration, go to www.theandersonnews.com.

More entries from blacksmith's ledger

THE WAY WE WERE

Compiled by Janie Bowen

J.D. Milton ran a blacksmith shop in Avenstoke in the early 1900s.

After his wife died, he raised two boys and a girl.

One of his sons, Millard Milton, became the postmaster at Avenstoke. The train that traveled through would pick up the mailbag from a hook on a post near the tracks, just like you see in the old westerns.

J.D. Milton's grandson and Millard's son, Curtis Milton, was raised in Avenstoke. He brought in an old ledger a while back that came from his grandfather's blacksmith shop.

The ledger contained his customers and their purchases from 1910 and 1913. There were many names of people in the community that Milton ran on account until they could pay him. Sometimes he would wait all year, until they sold their crops, before he would get paid for his work. Some would pay a little along, not just in money but also in other ways, such as work done for Milton, molasses, wood, strawberries or other things.

Orders would come from businesses in Louisville and surrounding areas for Milton's handiwork.

Milton would make tobacco knives for about 25 cents each, new horseshoes for 20 cents and old horseshoes could be had for 10 cents each. Milton would also build horse-drawn slides for $7 in 1910 or so.

He sold Clarence Watts two lap rings and clevis for 25 cents in May of 1911. Later in June, he fixed up a drill for 50 cents.

Calvin Edington had two H-plows made by Milton in March of 1911 for $7.

Ernest Johnson had a wagon tongue and haunch fixed by Milton in December 1912. It cost $4.50.

Willie Franklin had a piece for a stove fixed in January 1912 for 15 cents. Milton also fixed some pitchforks for 10 cents.

Rebecca Ann Franklin had a shaft and iron brace done by Milton in April 1911 at a cost of 10 cents. In October she bought four new tires for $4 and he put in a buggy shaft for $1.

In May of 1911, Fount Thacker had a plow beam put in $1.25. In July he had a machine tongue repaired for 70 cents and two tires shrunk for $1. In October Milton made him a corn knife for a dime. In June 1912 he had a pair of slide soles made for $1.50. Milton gave him credit of $1.50 for working on the roof and $1 for working in the shop.

A list of purchases to stock his blacksmith shop took up the whole sheet of paper and came to a total of $26.70 for J.D. Milton.

In October 1911, Milton made tobacco frames for 20 cents and a tobacco knife for 25 cents for Walter Maddox.

In May of 1911, Milton credited Measel Harvey $1.25 for a trip he made for Milton to Frankfort. A couple of months later Harvey hauled some sand and made three trips to Frankfort for Milton. Milton credited his account $4.50 for his work. He loaned Harvey 40 cents in July as well.

J.B. Wilson had a wagon brake fixed in September 1911 for 20 cents and a buckboard for $2 in November. In 1912, Milton made an ice hook for 15 cents.

Henry Johnson got 60 cents credit for molasses he gave Milton in Nov. 1911.

The blacksmith fixed a churn for J.M. Watts in October 1911 and in October 1911 he made a tobacco knife for 25 cents and a tobacco knife blade for 5 cents for Willie Peele. He also made two corn knives for 30 cents.

In January and February 1912, he gave Tom Pulliam $6 credit for two barrels of corn. He fixed a breast yoke iron for 15 cents and made a horse-drawn slide for $7.

Charley Wilson got a turtle hook fixed in August of 1911 for 10 cents. He gave Wilson credit of $1.50 for stacking wheat in July 1913 and 25 cents for thrashing some wheat.

J.C. Sutherland got a mowing machine fixed in June 1911 for $3.75. Ben Franklin got a sickle bar fixed for 25 cents.

Wesley Taylor paid 10 cents for wagon stirrups to be fixed in April 1912.

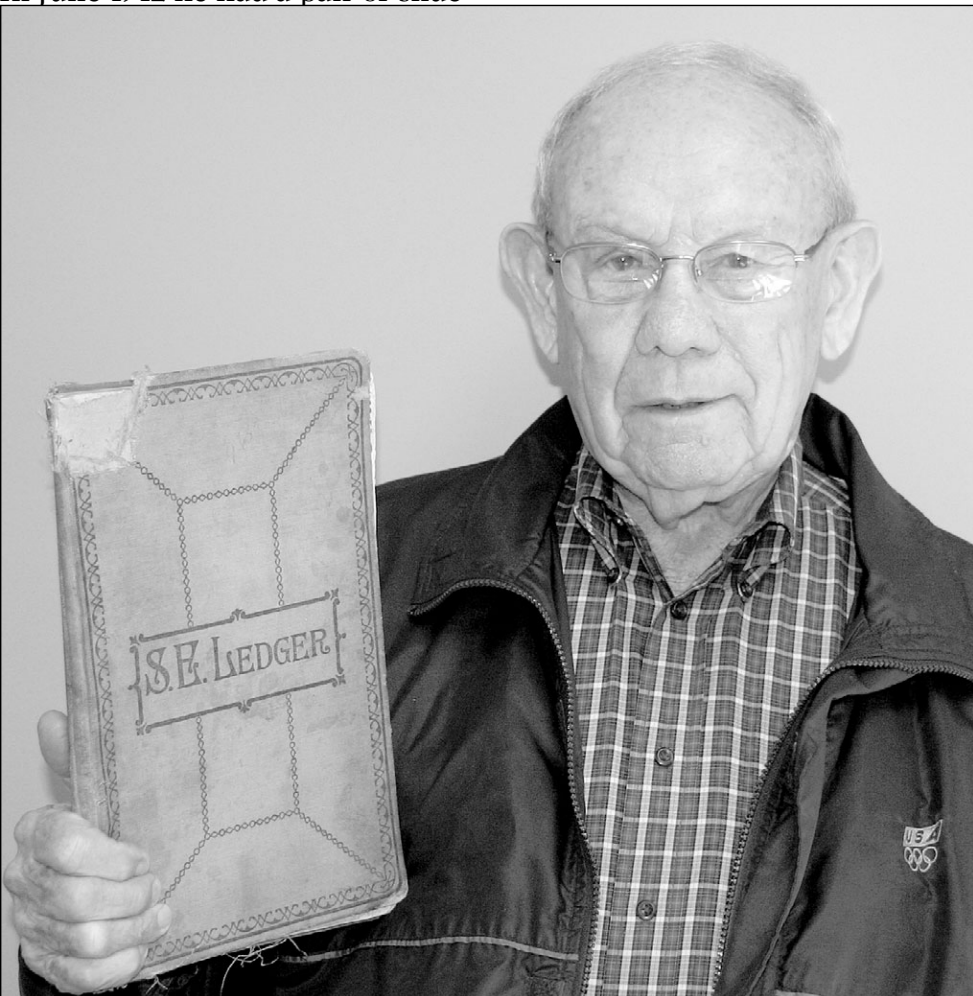

Van Davenport bought four fork handles for 80 cents in July 1912.

Measel Harvey got several credits of $1.25 for trips to Frankfort for Milton and a $2.25 credit for gathering corn for him.

He bought wagon tongue chains for 60 cents in March 1912, had a post digger sharpened in April for 10 cents. He bought a half rim and three spokes in August for $1.20.

J.M. Watts got 50 cents credit for strawberries he gave Milton.

A blacksmith was called a "jack-of-all-iron-trades," because he not only shoed horses, but made many of the items people in the area used to do their work. The blacksmith worked long days hammering, or forging, red-hot iron into an assortment of tools essential to the early settlers, such as axes, hoes, scythes, and plows blades. He made much-needed common items for the home such as nails, hinges, latches, pots and gates. And he repaired everything made of iron. As you can tell by the entries in the ledger, and that wasn't all of them, the blacksmith shop was a very important business in the community 100 years ago.

Curtis Milton, grandson of the owner of Milton's Blacksmith, holds his grandfather's ledger with entries from 1910 through 1913.

WEDDINGS

Phillips-Williams

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Scott Williams

Karla Elaine Phillips of Lexington and Bradley Scott Williams of Lexington were married June 2, 2012, at Chrisman Mill Vineyards.

Pastor Joshua Cummins officiated the wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodrow Phillips II of Lawrenceburg. The bride's grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Cook, Jr., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Phillips.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Williams of Versailles. The groom's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams.

The bride was given in marriage by her father Woody Phillips. She wore an ivory taffeta Maggie Sottero gown and a gardenia in her hair. She carried a bouquet of pale green roses.

The matron of honor was Sarah White of Lawrenceburg, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Bedford of Lawrenceburg, friend of the bride; Sarah Sud-deth of Lawrenceburg, friend of the bride; Lindsey Pfoff of Jamestown, Ky., friend of the bride; Allison Woolums of Corbin, Ky., friend of the bride; Whitney Williams of Versailles, sister of the groom; and Casey Wieland of Orlando, Fla., friend of the bride.

The ringbearer was Parker Lee White, nephew of the bride.

The best man was Trey Anderson of Louisville. The groomsmen were Casey Messner, Brandon Smith, Matt Adams, Jordan Barker, Ryan Heim and Danny Olszowy, all of Lexington and all friends of the groom. Ushers were Travis McConathy of Nicholasville, friend of the groom; and Daniel Stallings of Shelbyville, friend of the groom.

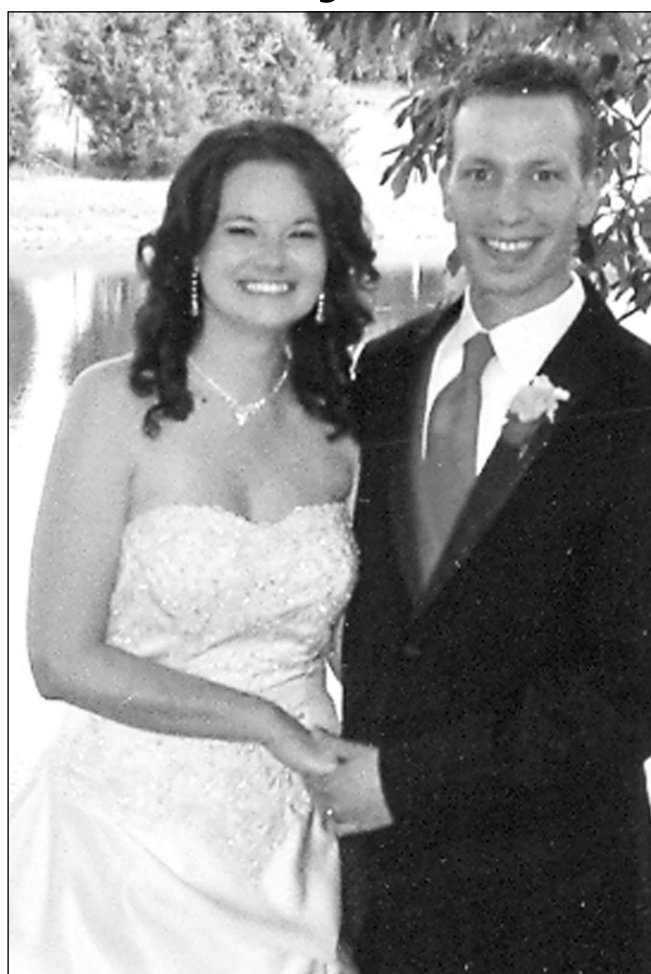

The bride is a 2007 Anderson County High School graduate and a graduate of Asbury University. She is currently employed as a health and wellness teacher at Stewart Home School.

The groom is a 2008 Dunbar High School graduate and a graduate of Asbury University. He is currently employed as a bike and fitness specialist at Dick's Sporting Goods.

The reception was held at Chrisman Mill Vineyards, and the honeymoon was in Maui, Hawaii.

The couple will reside in Lexington.

Young-Goin

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Jack Goin

Cecil "Tad" and Donna Lynn Young are proud to announce the marriage of their daughter, Cecilya Lynn Young to Bobby Jack Goin, all of Lawrenceburg.

The groom is the son of Sarah and John Garvison of Denton, Texas.

The wedding took place June 3, 2012, at the home of the bride and groom.

They had an outdoor ceremony in front of the pond.

Decorations were a large white arch and lots of pink and red roses.

Latifa Meenes performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white strapless Victorian gown covered in beads and pearls with a cascading train.

She carried a bouquet of pink and red roses.

The maid of honor was "in loving memory" of Morgan Hellard.

LaShannon Norris, sister of the bride, and Donna Young, mother of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Rhaegan White, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

All wore pink dresses and carried pink rose bouquets.

Steve Perkins was the best man. Martin Perkins, Tommy Pittman and John Garvison, father of the groom, served as groomsmen.

Brayden Norris, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

Grandparents of the bride are William and Lucille White.

Lucille was also in charge of flowers for the wedding.

Carolyn Cole, friend of the family, was in charge of photography.

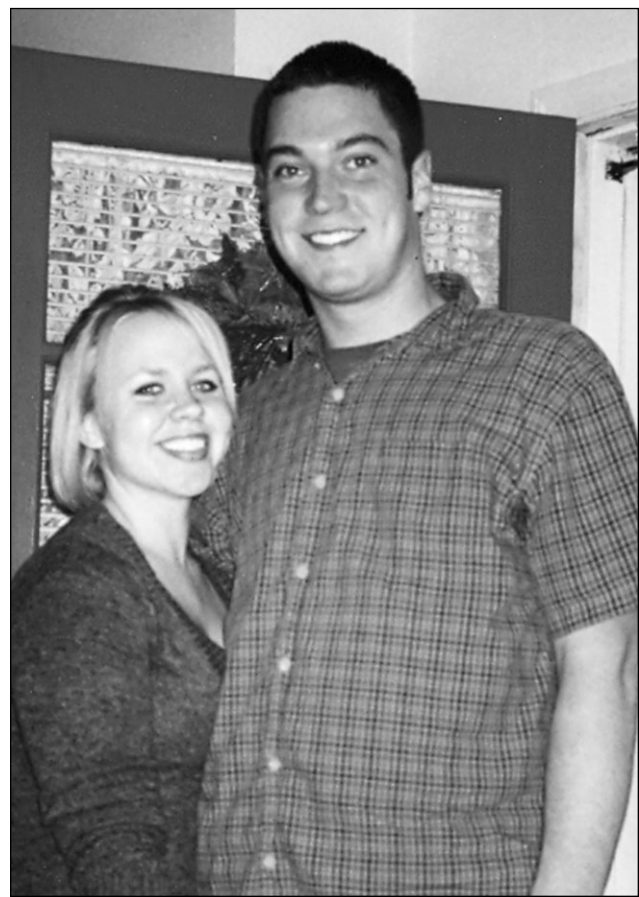

Dalton Young, brother of the bride, videotaped the wedding.

Lee White, cousin of the bride, and Dalton Young were in charge of music.

Rene'e Young, sister of the bride, and Betty White, aunt of the bride, were in charge of the reception, which was held in the park at the county community building.

The couple honeymooned in Virginia Beach, Va., and will reside in Lawrenceburg.

Hammond-Bedford

Mr. and Mrs. William James Bedford

Caitlin Ruby Hammond and William James Bedford, both of Lawrenceburg, were married Sept. 29, 2012, at the home of the groom's grandmother, Mattie Bedford of Lawrenceburg.

Parent of the bride is Annette Hammond of Lawrenceburg.

Parents of the groom are Terry and Pam Bedford of Lawrenceburg.

Grandparents of the bride are Carole Keene of Lawrenceburg and Bill Hammond of Howell, Mich. Grandparents of the groom are Mattie Bedford of Lawrenceburg and Kenneth and Linda Dobrick of Louisville.

Alvin Cummins of House of New Beginnings in Lawrenceburg officiated.

The maid of honor was Carolyn Bedford, the groom's sister, of Lawrenceburg. The best man was Kristian McNaghten, friend of the groom, of Lawrenceburg.

The bride is a 2007 Anderson County High School graduate. The groom is a 2004 Anderson County High School graduate.

Why are there so many religions?

You drive around Lawrenceburg and see Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Catholic churches.

There are, of course, many other religions world wide.

When people ask why there are so many different religions, I have a fairly simple response. Like my preacher would say, there are really only two types of religion — religion of do or done — the difference being one is based on human accomplishment and one is based on divine achievement. Men strive to get to God. We serve a God that came to us to provide salvation. Many religions are works-based and there are steps or a process of doing to achieve heaven. For example, Buddhists have steps of enlightenment and Muslims have pillars of achievement. Some religions knock on doors and have checklists of how much time they spend.

Jess Thompson

Unfortunately, the word of God is very clear on earning your way into heaven. It's impossible to work your way to heaven.

Isaiah 64:6 says, "All of us have become like one who is unclean, and all of our righteous acts are like filthy rags." In Paul's letter to the church at Ephesus in Ephesians 2:8 he writes, "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith-and this is not from yourselves, it is the gift of God — not by works, so that no one can boast."

It pains me to see people falsely trying to earn salvation. We don't deserve it. God has already done all of the work through his precious son Jesus and his sacrifice for our filthy sin.

What a wonderful God we have who gives us grace and gives true Christians the comfort to know the debt has been paid for us.

GOD REQUIRES REBUKE AND EXPOSING

Does God ever condemn someone for rebuking, exposing, reproving and admonishing evil; if so where? In fact, God commands us to expose that which is sinful and never be guilty of ignoring or concealing it.

2 Timothy 4:1-4 "I charge you therefore God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who will judge the living and the dead at His appearing and His kingdom; Preach the word! Be ready in season and out of season. Convince, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and teaching. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but according to their own desires, because they have itching ears, they will heap up for themselves teachers; and they will turn their ears away from the truth, and be turned aside to fables."

Titus 2:11-13 "For the grace of God that brings salvation has appeared to all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lust, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present age, looking for the blessed hope and glorious appearing of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ."

Isa. 58:1 "Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgression, and ... sins."

The great message of Gospel Preaching is CHANGE (repent) or perish (Luke 13:3, 5). The TRUTH will always disturb those in ERROR and they will try to silence the message and messenger. Error must be refuted, never supported!

Timmons a real Franklin Flyer

All you could do was tip your hat to Ryan Timmons. By now, everybody who knows that a touchdown is worth six points knows who Timmons is. Even people who wouldn't know a football is filled with air know about the guy who really is a Franklin County Flyer. He really is that fast. Ask every major college football coach in the country. Timmons will have more than enough places willing to give him a free education in exchange for making other teams look at the back of his uniform on a more than regular basis. Friday, we saw another chapter, maybe the most exciting yet, in a high school career that has had those who have seen Timmons play gushing with praise but grasping for the right words to describe the indescribable. Unfortunately, Anderson County experienced the indescribable talent Friday night when Timmons took a handoff on a kickoff, then raced 80 yards for the game-winning touchdown as time expired. Franklin County's unbeaten season remained intact. It also set off an impromptu campaign for Timmons to be named the state's Mr. Football. While those around central Kentucky are convinced Timmons is one of those players you see about every lifetime, many others believe Louisville Trinity's James Quick should receive the coveted honor. I've never seen Quick, nor do I have a vote for Mr. Football. There is no doubt he is worthy, being the most feared weapon on a team that has been the best in the state through his career and was named the best in the nation last fall.

But I can say I have never seen a high school football player dominate the game as much as Timmons. Consider that Friday night, Anderson County led Franklin County at halftime, 21-14. Whether Anderson paying extra attention to Timmons freed up Greg Maupin and Lorenzo McCaskell opened things up or not, I could not tell you. But what I do know is that the first glances at the state sheet went to Timmons' yardage, which were 8 receiving and minus-4 rushing at the time. You knew things would change quickly in the second half. They did. On the first play of the third quarter, Timmons broke off a 34-yard run. And, even when Timmons' final stat line was not an eye-popper - 58 yards rushing, 80 receiving - there is no question he was still the most dominant player suited up at Benny Watkins Field last Friday. Standing near the Anderson County bench when Joe Rose kicked a field goal putting the Bearcats up 52-50 with 14 seconds to go, my immediate thought was there was still too much time on the clock.

Anderson had milked the clock masterfully, but Franklin was able to use a pair of time outs, which, in turn, did not allow Anderson to score on the last play. Timmons took care of that, even though Anderson did everything in its power to prevent it. "They had been going his way all night," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "We knew that if we kicked away from him, they would probably try a reverse or something." Anderson County played marvelously Friday night. The Bearcats went toe-to-toe with a team expected to be a strong contender for a state championship game berth. "We could see them again," Peach said. Friday night, the teams were pretty even. Except Franklin County had Ryan Timmons. A tip of the hat to him.

Flyers' Timmons returns kick to give Franklin County crown on game's final play

By John Herndon

FRANKFORT - Anderson County had done everything it could. For 47 minutes and 46 seconds, the Bearcats went toe-to-toe with unbeaten Franklin County. The Bearcats ran 84 offensive plays. They gained 618 yards. They even held the football for nearly 36 minutes. They practically moved the ball at will - 36 first downs, apparently a school record - and matched everything Franklin County could throw at them. Except Ryan Timmons. Just 14 seconds from a district championship after Joe Rose drilled a 24-yard field goal to put the Bearcats up 52-50, it might as well have been 14 years with Timmons set to return the kickoff for the Flyers. The Bearcats did almost everything right. Rose squibbed the kickoff to Lorenzo McCaskell, lined up across the field from Timmons. The ball took a big hop just before it reached McCaskell, allowing the Flyer returner to field the ball without going down. McCaskell still bobbled the ball. Anderson did everything right. Until McCaskell was able to lateral the ball to Timmons. Fourteen seconds. It didn't matter. "They had been going his way all night," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "We knew if we kicked away from him, they would probably try a reverse or something." Timmons went right, juked a tackler or two, cut back to his left and the race was on. Peach knew his team's monumental upset wasn't going to happen when Timmons "got to the right hash mark and cut it across the middle of the field." In Kentucky, a race with Timmons is a race for second place. Timmons went 80 yards to give Franklin a 56-52

Life's a 'drag' for local racer

Racing 'in blood' of UMTR champ

Tom Borgia did not have to show up in Cleves, Ohio, on Saturday night, but the Anderson County drag racer would not have missed the trip to Edgewater Sports Park, located just outside Cincinnati, for anything. The local drag racer only had to formalize his championship in the United Manual Transmission Racers South in the final race of the 2012 season Saturday. Borgia already had an insurmountable lead in the Street Stick division even before Saturday's racing card. "I compete in everything," Borgia said with a laugh. Over this summer, he has practically dominated his class with a 1995 Ford Mustang he has totally rebuilt. His racing travels have taken him not only to Edgewater, his favorite track, but also to Ohio Valley in Louisville and Clay City. He's also raced at Columbus, Ohio. It has been a long journey back from Nov. 26, 2006. That night, in Atco, N.J., the Volkswagen Beetle he was racing hit the wall after crossing the finish line. Although Borgia was not seriously hurt - he just had some bruises - there were questions about his return to the track.

Since that night, he's moved to the hometown of his wife, the former Lisa Hansley, and sons Gary and Toby. He's opened his own business, Anderson Automotive Repair, and satisfied the six-year itch to return to the track. "It's in my blood," Borgia says. "I was tuning other people's cars. I was fixing other people's cars. I couldn't get away from it." He spent nearly a year fixing up the Mustang he'd bought in Columbus. It has a 302 engine before unveiling it with three races in 2011. Borgia was all in for 2012. The Street Stick class is one where the cars are not quite as fast," says Borgia, who raced professionally along the East Coast from 2003-06. "The fastest this car has gone is 109 mph. It aver-

Jubilant Lady Bearcats celebrate 30th District title

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

SHELBYVILLE - It's only been three years since Anderson County has tasted the sweetness of a district soccer championship, but the jubilation branded on the Lady Bearcats' faces emphasized the fact that it had been too long. Much too long. Anderson used a pair of first half goals to defeat Spencer County, 2-0, in the 30th District Tournament championship game last Wednesday at Collins High School. The Lady Bearcats, raced to midfield to receive their trophy and rejoiced like a team that knew it was better than its pedestrian 9-10-3 record. "It has been a while," said Anderson coach Jason Earnest. "The seniors were freshmen the last time we did it. It feels good. Feel real good." The Lady Bearcats got the only goal they needed when Madeline Wilson delivered a free kick from

Bearcats 5K run set for Oct. 27

From staff reports

The Anderson County Bearcat basketball 5K run/walk is set for Saturday, Oct. 27 at 9 a.m. The race will start behind Anderson County Middle School and will be a mostly flat course and will be controlled by police. There will be a water stop at the halfway point and refreshments will be available at the end of the race.

The race raises money for the Anderson County High School boys' basketball team. Many door prizes will be awarded that day. Pre-registration is $15 per person before Oct. 18. After that date, registration is $20 per person. Participants must register by Oct. 18 to guarantee a T-shirt, which is included in the race fee. For more information, contact Billy Squires at 502-606-1098 or Billy.Squires@Anderson.kyschools.us.

Basketball Bearcats to play before Pacers game

From staff reports

The Anderson County Bearcat basketball team will be playing like the pros next month.

The Bearcats will participate in a scrimmage with Southwestern on Saturday, Nov. 3 at Bankers Life Fieldhouse, the home of the NBA's Indiana Pacers. Tip-off is at 2:30 p.m.

The Pacers will be playing the Sacramento Kings, who feature former University of Kentucky players DeMarcus Cousins and Chuck Hayes along with former Louisville Cardinal Francisco Garcia.

Tipoff for the Pacers-Kings game is 7 p.m.

A special website address has been set up through the Pacers to allow fans to purchase tickets for the games.

Tickets are $13 and must be purchased online at www.pacersgroups.com/tickets/ 978 by Friday, Oct. 19 for the discounted rate.

PREVIEW: ANDERSON COUNTY VS. EAST JESSAMINE

Bearcats looking to bounce back with playoff berth

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Mark Peach knew what his post-game speech would be as soon as Ryan Timmons turned the corner Friday night.

Peach knew that Anderson would not catch Timmons as he raced to his district-clinching - and legend-sealing - kickoff return Friday night at Franklin County.

Timmons had snatched a monumental victory from the Bearcats on the last play of the game. Peach was determined it would not be a monumental defeat for his team.

"We can't let this one turn into two losses," Peach told his team Friday.

Translation: It hurt, but there is still football to be played. A home game in the first round of the state Class 5A playoffs will be on the line when the Bearcats host East Jessamine on Friday night at Warford Stadium.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

"It is going to be a challenge. We can't allow ourselves to wallow in self-pity," Peach said. "You do that in life and bad things can happen."

A year ago, Anderson was in the same situation. After 8 games, the Bearcats were 6-2 after being smacked and run over by Franklin 56-24. They would have to go to East Jessamine to clinch the home field for the first round.

The Bearcats did that, to the tune of 50-12. With some upsets along the way, they played three of four playoff games at home as they advanced to the state championship game in Bowling Green.

It really is deja vu all over again.

East Jessamine has been rebuilding this season, with only two wins under its belt. Those two victories, however, came over district foes Woodford County and a West Jessamine team that had played Anderson to the final horn before losing 41-39 the week before.

Anderson County quarterback Zachary Carmichael spins away from Franklin County's Logan Woodside during the first quarter of Friday's game at Franklin.

East Jessamine whipped its crosstown rival, 47-29 Friday night.

"They are the best one-win football team in the state," Peach said before getting word that East had beaten West.

That sounds like some coach speak, but the fact that East ripped a team that had Anderson down 20-0 at one point does raise some eyebrows.

"They dominated Woodford County. They were in the game with Montgomery County and Franklin County," Peach said. "They have three running backs who are excellent runners. Their quarterback is athletic and they are very aggressive."

What should grab anyone's attention, though, is the fact that Friday's game is for the important second place in the Class 5A, District 6 race. Four teams from each district advance to the state playoffs, with the top two teams playing at home in the first round. As Anderson learned last year, the two-seed can also host subsequent games in the event of some upsets.

Anderson is 3-1 in district play going into the district finale. East Jessamine is 2-2, but if the Jaguars upset the Bearcats, they would get the home field advantage in the event of a tie. Head-to-head competition determines the higher seed.

"The main thing is to come out and take care of business," Peach said.

There is one scenario where Anderson could lose but still get the two seed, but it would involve Montgomery County beating Franklin County this week. That would leave Anderson, East Jessamine and Montgomery all at 3-2 and in a 3-way tie for the second slot. Anderson would appear to hold the tie-breaker at this point.

But Peach wants no part of that. For one thing, the likelihood of Montgomery upsetting Franklin is very slim. Most of all, Peach believes the Bearcats are more than capable of taking care of things on their own.

Doing it yourself saves a lot of problems.

Region roundup

Franklin County sealed the District 6 championship with its win over Anderson County last Friday night. Anderson is also in the playoffs, but whether the Bearcats will be a two- or three-seed will be determined against East Jessamine.

The other two district playoff berths are still up in the air as East Jessamine, Montgomery County and West Jessamine are all in contention.

If Woodford County beats West Jessamine Friday night, Montgomery and East Jessamine are in.

The seedings would be based on Friday's outcome. A West Jessamine win over Woodford would send things into a three-way tie.

In District 5, Conner and Cooper will be heavily favored to beat Covington Scott and Grant County to throw that district's top seed into a three-way tie with South Oldham, which has completed district play.

Scott has clinched the fourth seed and will play at Franklin County in the first round of the playoffs.

That district is in a mess after South Oldham beat Conner which beat Cooper which beat South Oldham. The tie-breaker is very close and may not be decided until after the final week of the season.

Anderson will play one of those three teams in the first round of the playoffs, whether the Bearcats finish as No. 2 or No. 3.

win and the Class 5A, District 6 championship.

The Flyer fans stormed the field to celebrate with their heroes.

Some Anderson players wept bitterly. Others stood, too stunned to express any other emotion. Bearcat fans, who had packed - and rocked - the visitors' bleachers, quietly filed out.

Fourteen seconds had changed everything.

"What can you say," Peach said. "It was a tremendous effort. We can't let this game beat us twice. We are a good football team. If we can continue to make strides like we have been, we can make a post-season run like we did last year."

Friday, it had been a battle of heavyweights that lived up to its billing. And more. Much more.

When Rose kicked his field goal, it was the fifth time the lead had changed, the third time since the 3:04 mark, when Zachary Carmichael capped a 74-yard drive with a 1-yard dive that made it 49-42.

Franklin answered 59 seconds later when Timmons took a swing pass from Logan Woodside. After timeouts by both teams, Timmons scooted around right end for a conversion that put Franklin back up 50-49.

As it had all night long, Anderson responded.

"I couldn't be more proud of our guys," Peach said. "We had some opportunities to fold and never did that. Every time (Franklin County) did something, the kids came back."

Out of timeouts and taking over at the Anderson 35 after the ensuing kickoff went out of bounds, the Bearcats struck quickly. Carmichael hit Ross Cox for a 27-yard pickup on the first play. They hooked up five times for 116 yards on the night.

Carmichael, who registered a career high 139 yards on the ground, motored 15 yards to the Franklin 12, prompting a Flyer timeout. That stoppage, and Franklin's last one, after the next play, did not allow the Bearcats to run the clock down to kick on the final play. Three running plays netted 6 yards, forcing the Bearcats to go for the win.

The snap scooted along the ground but holder Sam Laytart was able to get the ball down for Rose, who had to hesitate but was able to put the ball through the uprights.

"Sam did a great job getting the ball down and Joe Rose just made a clutch kick there," Peach said.

But there were still 14 seconds left. Everyone around the Anderson camp knew how lethal Timmons could be. Peach had compared the state champion sprinter to Usain Bolt and said that if Timmons ever decides to go for Olympic glory, he was sure the Franklin senior would win.

But for a half, Anderson had managed to keep Timmons bottled up. At halftime, he had caught one pass for eight yards and had just one carry for a 4-yard loss. Nathan Cox had done the honors, nailing Timmons in the backfield. But on the very next play, Woodside connected with Greg Maupin for a 64-yard scoring pass to put Franklin up 7-0.

Woodside, a senior who had played at Anderson as a freshman and sophomore, finished with 300 yards and five touchdowns through the air. Timmons finished with 58 yards rushing (on four carries) and 80 yards receiving (3 catches) to go with his decisive kickoff return.

But Carmichael was matching the Toledo commit, throwing for 288 yards and four touchdowns. Granville Hayes and Dusty Puckett both hauled in two scoring passes. Carmichael ran for three more, including a sneak from inside the Franklin 1 on the final play of the first half to put Anderson up 21-14 at the break.

"Zachary Carmichael has to be one of the best sophomore quarterbacks in the state," Peach said. "He ran for three touchdowns and threw for for more against the No. 4 team in the state."

"We had big games from a lot of people. Zachary, Ross Cox, Tristan Ashburn, Granville Hayes, Dusty Puckett. Our line was outstanding tonight."

Ashburn, getting his first extensive work as a ball carrier, answered with 109 yards on 23 carries. Most were simple runs up the middle behind an offensive line that controlled things up front.

As a team, the Bearcats piled up 330 yards on the ground, the largest team total since at least 2010. The 52 points were Anderson's largest total since putting 56 on Montgomery County in the second round of the state playoffs last year.

That the Bearcats still came up short is a testament to Franklin's reputation as Kentucky's most explosive team. The Flyers averaged nearly five points for every minute they possessed the ball and 12.4 yards for every time they snapped it.

No one around the Anderson camp will argue that the Flyers are one of the favorites to follow Anderson as the eastern half of the state's representative in the state championship game.

ages about 106. It can get from 0-109 in 12.5 seconds.”

The competition drives similar vehicles. “One has a Dodge Neon. Some drive trucks,” Borgia says.

Early in the season, however, it was apparent that Borgia’s handiwork was the one to beat. Before Saturday, he’d been on the strip 11 times with four firsts, a second and three semi-final finishes. He knew he had clinched the championship after a UMTR event at Clay City.

It has been a lifelong journey for Borgia, who fell in love with the track growing up in Wappingers Falls, N.Y., 78 miles north of New York City. He made his first trip to the track in 1977, when he was 4, to see his father race.

By age 9, he was hanging around a neighbor’s machine shop. He’s been tinkering or dragging ever since.

A stint in the Navy honed those skills as Borgia worked on F-14 and F-18 fighter planes.

“They are similar (to cars),” he said. “Aerodynamics are aerodynamics. They are similar in the hydraulics, the shocks and the struts.”

But there are differences.

“(The Mustang) is a piston engine. It is internal combustion, like planes from World War II,” Borgia says. “I worked on jets in the Navy.”

The love of speed never changed. It’s all about the show and experience of the strip. “It is the sounds. It is the smell of burning tires. No matter where you are watching, it is exciting,” Borgia says.

Even before the wreck that sent him to the sidelines, Borgia had been racing for 20 years. He’s tried the dirt tracks but says with a laugh, “That is too much work and the car takes a beating.”

Drag racing? It is a series of heats on a strip anywhere from 1/8 to 1/4 mile long. A recent Saturday night at Edgewater saw Borgia race in seven elimination heats. The total track time was about three minutes.

But it was expensive. In addition to entry fees and travel costs, there is that VP 110 Octane racing fuel that he burns at a rate of about 1.5 miles a gallon. He will use four gallons for a racing card that is, in effect, five or six miles of driving.

There are constant repairs, tune-ups and improvements.

“The definition of drag racing,” Borgia laughs, “is buying parts you don’t need with money you don’t have to impress people you don’t know.”

All summer, Tom Borgia has been impressing people on the local drag racing circuit. He plans, however, to move up in class for 2013. “The cars go faster. Some will go up to 180 mph in that class,” he says.

But for now, he will savor his success in 2012. He keeps the Mustang at his shop and he says his trophy will be there, too.

Why?

Borgia laughs. “So I can look at it every day.”

only about 3 to 4 yards out midway through the first half.

Spencer had passed the ball back to the goalkeeper, who inexplicably picked the ball up, earning a handball call right in front of the net. Spencer filled the net with black-shirted players, but Madeline Wilson connected half way through the first half.

Autumn Miller took a cross from Makenzie Cann in the 37th minute, then made a spectacular shot to an open net as the Spencer goalie had been tangled just to the right of the net.

The Anderson defense took care of business the rest of the way, as Spencer only had two real chances to score all game. The second came with 11 minutes to play after a questionable foul had been called on the Lady Bearcats. The free kick, from about 25 yards out, hit the cross bar and bounded away.

Anderson bottled up Spencer’s Madison Ratchford, one of the state’s leading scorers, averaging almost two goals a game. Spencer had upset Collins, 2-1 in a shootout, in the tournament’s first round.

“They have some very nice players. They don’t have a deep bench. I think that is why you started seeing the tide turn in the second half,” Earnest said. “We were able to use our bench. They have some nice players. They have a good team.”

“In the second half, we didn’t score, but we did a good job of keeping the ball in the second half. They wore down. I think that is a little intimidating that we would have four or five subs come in and they would have maybe one.”

“We knew we had them 2-0 at half-time. (Earnest) told us not give to up and look past them to the region. We knew we had to try hard,” said Anderson senior Andrea Melanson.

Another senior, Morgan Abner, added, “He pretty much said we would have go come out strong. They came back on us last time (a 4-2 Anderson win.)

As the celebration began, the Lady Bearcats put three years of frustration behind them. From 2004-2010, the Lady Bearcats had been in a district with perennial power Woodford County. Despite often being ranked in the state’s Top 25, Anderson had only taken two district titles from Woodford. Under a new alignment, Anderson felt its district chances were very good.

“It had been rough going through all of that and knowing we could beat (Woodford). We never did finish,” said Melanson. “We did our freshman year and now we were able to do it in our senior year. It is a great feeling.”

Few would call the current Lady Bearcats one of the top three or four teams in Anderson history, but they were able to claim a crown.

And the jubilation verified the fact.

Titans show Bearcats why they're ranked No. 5

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

SHELBYVILLE - Collins showed why it has climbed into the state's top five boys' soccer teams last Thursday. The Titans downed Anderson County, 3-0, in the 30th District Tournament championship match, held at Collins. The Titans dominated in every way to move to 16-1-2 on the year. Anderson fell to 10-10-0. Both teams were to play in the Eighth Region tournament Monday night at various sites. "They are a very good team," Anderson coach Khamisi Campbell said. "They are patient and if you give them time to play, they are going to punish you. "We gave them too much time to play." Collins had taken an early lead on a goal, then put pressure on the Bearcats with another score just 23 seconds before halftime. Collins put things away three minutes into the second half with another score. Collins coach Scott Cress said the third goal was very big. "If they get one and make it 2-1, they have the momentum and they feel like they've got a chance. If we go out and get one right away, we can keep playing our normal game. They have to adjust to us not us adjust to them. We could play our game, possession and move the ball around." "They understand hot to keep the ball. They are patient," Campbell said. It was much different than the first time the teams played, when Anderson took the Titans to overtime before losing, 2-1. "It was a different field," Cress said. "We are on a bigger field. We were able to spread it out and get more shots on the goal. Got the open space. Were able to spread it out." Campbell believed Anderson got off to a slow start. "I don't think our team played as well as I would like. "We started the game very flat, not enough energy. Initially, we dropped off too deep. It wasn't the best decision.

After about 10 minutes we stepped up and got a little more pressure. We had a chance to get in behind in the first half and just didn't finish."

Girls' Volleyball

Shelby defeats Anderson for district volleyball championship

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

This time, the third set was the charm for Shelby County volleyball. The Lady Rockets grabbed a quick lead then held off every charge a determined Anderson County team could muster in the match-changing set, then closed things out in the fourth to earn their first district championship since 2009. After splitting the first two games, Shelby took a quick lead, expanded it to as many as five points, but held off several furious Anderson charges. The Lady Bearcats, however, could never get closer than two points as Shelby earned a 25-19 victory in the third game. The Lady Rockets were never threatened in the clinching set, rolling to a 25-13 win. "We talk about composure," said Shelby coach Felicia Pace. "Composure is going to determine how you handle things. That is the difference." Shelby senior Ariana Jones added, "It was pretty big because (Anderson) is one of our biggest competitors. They are always after us." "Shelby County is a very scrappy team," said Anderson's first-year coach, Courtney DeLong. "They had some hits that we didn't think we could play defense off."

—Courtney DeLong
Volleyball coach

Shelby was called for being in the net. Anderson's 25-19 margin after Liberty O'Neal's kill was the largest for either team in the second set. "That is one reason why she was on the all-tournament team," DeLong said. "It was like a light went off for her." Shelby, however, regrouped and showed why it went unbeaten (8-0) against district teams. The Lady Rockets simply made the plays, whether it was Pace, Jones or Shelby Tooke doing so at the net or Leslie Sloan making passes to find her teammates or fooling the Lady Bearcats with deft tips. "They were aggressive and continued to be aggressive during the match," DeLong noted. "You could tell we were starting to get down on ourselves and we had a hard time getting ourselves back up. "We had a hard time letting go and pushing forward." Even though Shelby picked up its seventh district title in Coach Pace's 11 years at the helm, the Lady Rockets celebrated with the joy of a team experiencing its first major success. In a sense, they were. It was the school's first district crown since the Collins split. "It is nice and it is very exciting for us after we lost the last two years," Pace said. "We have been talking about winning the district. It is great. It is a great feeling." "It was pretty amazing," said Jones. "I am very proud of my team." Shelby earned the right to host next week's Eighth Region Tournament. Pairings will be announced Saturday, according to DeLong. The region boasted three ranked teams - No. 15 North Oldham, No. 19 South Oldham and No. 21 Simon Kenton - and figures to be a very competitive affair. Anderson has come far but hopes to make some more noise at the regional, where it has not played since 2009, when the current seniors were freshmen. "This is a big step for us," DeLong said. "One of our goals was to win the district. We were capable of winning it but things didn't go as planned. "We get to go to the regional and are still a force to be reckoned with. The girls are not going to back down from anyone."

All-Tournament team Members of the district's all-tournament team were Spencer County's Jessie Riggs and Bethany Martin, Aaliyah Wells and Miranda Kerher of Collins, Anderson County's Liberty O'Neal, Bethany Hardin and Shelbi Savoie and Shelby County's Shelby Tooke, Leslie Sloan, Ariana Jones and Kyndle Pace.

LEGAL NOTICES

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, October 25, 2012, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts herein-after set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
